

WELCOME

The Directors and staff at PSA would like to thank our clients, and peers in making 2017 a success.

We are rapt (excuse the pun) to provide a gift to you in this final PSA Way Christmas edition, with powerful insights from our Program & Project Management research survey. In the same vein of continuous improvement, we discuss WHY lessons learnt can add value to your organisation and programs/ projects.

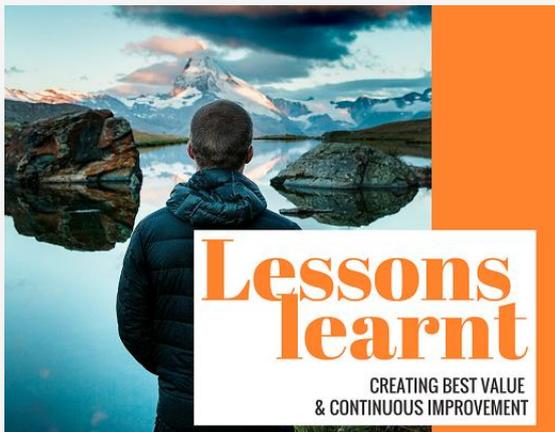

PSA also bring you an update on our leading role in the evaluation of a Program of Projects by the UK Department for International Development in Nepal. Staying in that region, one of our Directors, Garry Smart, reflects on his visit to India to experiencing the humanitarian programs being delivered and their challenges.

We also announce new engagements with the State Government of Victoria and DHHS providing our proven and tested independent monitoring, as well as supporting the business case development for new initiatives with Development Victoria.

From all of us at PSA, please have a healthy and safe Christmas and new year break and we look forward to being able to add value to your program and project management journey in 2018.

PSA NEWS

LESSONS LEARNT ESSENTIALS AND HOW THIS PRACTICE WILL ADD VALUE

Taking time to reflect and capture lessons learnt from an organisation or stakeholder point of view has been proven to be one of the most effective ways of implementing continuous improvement and creating value.

Read Full Article Here

PSA'S PROGRAM & PROJECT MANAGEMENT RESEARCH SURVEY RESULTS ARE HERE

Almost 30 years after completing our last Project Management survey, PSA has again engaged with its community of practice to establish what is working well in Project Management as well as the state of Program Management and how it can be improved for best value.

Read Full Article Here

NEW ENGAGEMENTS WITH VICTORIAN STATE GOVERNMENT

We are pleased to be supporting the Victorian State Government team at Development Victoria through the development of feasible project planning for a number of major projects set to kick off next year as well as independent progress monitoring for DHHS.

Read Full Article Here

PROGRAM SUCCESS FACTORS

FIELD TRIPS TO KATHMANDU FOR THE EVALUATION OF A PROGRAM OF PROJECTS

The month of November saw 3 of our directors complete important site field trips to Nepal in support of the first phase of work with IOD PARC. These were valuable to see firsthand the work of the resilience program and to meet the many personnel on the ground.

Read Full Article Here

HUMANITARIAN PROGRAM VISITS IN INDIA

A recent visit to India by Garry focused on humanitarian programs aimed at improving the quality of health and education for the under privileged. Garry was able to reflect on this and capture, through his lens, the juxtaposition of the hardship and the positive outcomes that were being delivered.

Read Full Article Here

AIPM PUBLICATION - OCT/NOV 17 ISSUE

AIPM's national publication features PSA's founder and Managing Director, Dr Paul Steinfort, and discusses the ongoing and critical need for a solid program and project management framework and the needs of the Project Manager to be reflective and learn to listen.

Read Full Article Here